Research experience

Mnemology Lab , Duke University Ph.D. Student Advisors: Roberto Cabeza, Ph.D.; Simon Davis, Ph.D. • Conduct univariate analyses and representational similarity analyses (RSA) and write up behavioral and neuroimaging (fMRI) experiments to study the hippocampal and cortical correlates of relational memory types	Durham, NC, USA August 2025 – Present
Memory and Concepts Lab , Drexel University Lab Manager Advisor: Alexa Tompary, Ph.D.	Philadelphia, PA, USA August 2023 – Present
Research: • Conceptualized, designed, implemented, analyzed results, and wrote up: – behavioral experiments on the impacts of semantic relations on memory – behavioral and transcranial magnetic stimulation (TMS) on the effects of concreteness, context, and semantic control on episodic memory • Designed and implemented behavioral and TMS experiments to understand the timing of the influence of category knowledge on memory retrieval • Collaborated on neuroimaging (fMRI) experiment to study the interplay between mind wandering and episodic memory
Administrative: • Assembled and submitted grant applications and IRB documentation • Scheduled lab meetings and lab events and reserved venues • Recruited, trained, and managed undergraduate research assistants • Purchased supplies, equipment, and services for the laboratory • Documented expenses and submitted reports • Designed and maintained lab website
